

Between Black and White: Theorizing Racial Democracy, Crime and Justice

Special issue of the Journal of Contemporary Criminal Justice, edited by María Vélez, Rod Brunson and Jody Miller

The Journal of Contemporary Criminal Justice (<http://ccj.sagepub.com/>) invites submissions for a special issue, Between Black and White: Theorizing Racial Democracy, Crime and Justice, edited by María Vélez, Rod Brunson and Jody Miller. The editors seek manuscripts on a variety of topics within this broad area, with the goal of showcasing theoretically grounded research that investigates the connections between race, crime and justice that go beyond the black/white divide typical of research in criminology and criminal justice. This includes, for example, research that considers the experiences of racial and ethnic groups typically excluded from criminological research, and research that considers the intersections of race with class and gender. They also welcome theoretical pieces, and seek to include submissions from diverse methodological approaches. The inquiries about the appropriateness of topics can be directed to the special issue editors. All manuscripts will be peer reviewed. They should be no more than 30 typed double-spaced pages, including tables, figures, and references. Manuscripts must be received no later than October 1, 2010. Please send two electronic copies of the manuscript (one complete version with a cover page and one blind copy with all identifying information removed) to María B. Vélez at mvelez@unm.edu. Guidelines for authors and additional information are available at <http://ccj.sagepub.com>.

Deadline for submissions: October 1, 2010
