and he and his brother came together in a fight.

Their father came in and separated them.

Milton then told his mother that he was going to take a bath and go into the parlor, lock the door and sleep; and if his brother came after him with a razor or anything, he would shoot him.

Shortly after this she heard a shot and on going into the room adjoining the parlor she saw Edgar lying on the floor. He made the sign of the cross and died.

Near him was a small pen knife, open.

Milton hid in an outhouse, where he was arrested by myself and officers Gulloh, Michel and Scott.

The revolver, containing one Empty Shell and four loaded Cartridges, was found under the mattress in the bedroom.

Milton acknowledged doing the shooting but refused to make any statement.

The body of Edgar was viewed at the residence by Asst. Coroner Dr. Mirton, who resides in the neighborhood and by his orders, turned over to the family.

The father is suffering from nervous shock, which deprives him of his speech and the family Physician Dr. Suarez, was called in to attend him.

The accused bears a good reputation, while the deceased's name has frequently appeared in the police arrest books.
