The two were married. They were having an argument about her relationship to her next door neighbor and to another friend. He went into the house and got a gun. He says she grabbed at the gun and it went off but as she was shot 2 times and he proceeded to run away to S. Carolina, it seems more likely that he simply shot her in cold blood.

James Ferguson and his companion were (June 7, 1927 - paroled) drinking in a saloon and both were drunk. They instigated a fight with the defendant, Edward Roberts, and then they were thrown out of the saloon. Roberts left also and Ferguson's companion shoved him. Roberts knocked Ferguson's companion and then Ferguson, who hit his head on the curb and died.
Roberts was found guilty of Assault and Battery and sentenced

There is no motive given for the shooting of the deceased by the ~~victim~~ defendant. He denies absolutely, ~~being~~ being there at all.

According to witnesses the accused, the victim and two other men were drinking and playing cards. Also present were Lye's wife and 3 other women. At some point one of the unmarried - someone Touri liked - asked Lye to walk her home. He assented and Touri followed them to the door where he shot Lye.

Lewan and Julia Kyrzczuk had not been getting along for years. Lewan would beat his wife every week. Finally, on the 20th of February, he shot her in the head. When asked why, he said that, "she didn't want to wash the children." He also accused her of sleeping around, which the neighbors say was untrue. (This guy seems to be nuts.) He was found guilty of 1st degree murder and sentenced to life.

Thomas's wife left him to live w/ Green..
She then told him Green was threatening her.
Thomas went to Green's to help her. As he entered he saw Green put his hand in his pocket. Thinking he was going to be shot, Thomas drew his gun + killed Green

Remarks:

(March 29, 1954 retrial May 3, 1954 V → NG)

They were walking down the street and It's unusual to find a case where someone is found guilty of 1st deg murder and then retried and found Not guilty. Reading over the testimony, I can't believe this man was found guilty in the first place. Frank Harris and Wilbert McQueen were friends, ~~and they were both carrying guns.~~ Two black officers approached them from behind. One officer slapped Harris' pockets, felt the gun and when Harris turned around, fired at him. (This is according to Harris' testimony; the officers testimony is somewhat different.) The offi put three bullets into Harris, the first one entered his chest, and he put the second and third in his legs. As this was happening to Harris, McQueen had a gunbattle with the other officer and was killed. Harris was brought up on charges of having killed McQueen. ~~It~~ It is not clear when Harris threw away his gun, but what is clear is that ^{when} his gun was ~~tested with~~ examined afterwards ~~it was~~ found to contain short lead bullets. McQueen ~~was shot with a~~ ^{was shot with a} copper ~~bullet~~ ^{jacketed} long bullet. ~~His~~ The officers claim that Harris fired the shot which killed McQueen, but if this is the case, why was the bullet not a short lead ~~one~~ ^{one}. ~~The other bullets~~ The officers claim to have lost the ~~other~~ ^{unfired} bullets which had been in ~~the~~ Harris' gun. ^{Perhaps} one of the bullets could have been copper covered and long. Except that Harris claims that those bullets wouldn't fit in his gun. The gun could not be closed with those type bullets inside of it.

Now regardless of Harris' character or his possession of a loaded pistol, how could a jury have convicted him of McQueen's murder? The bullet was not his, which brings up the ^{question} ~~point~~, why was he found guilty? At first I thought it might be racial, and it might be, but the officers were black also. Maybe because he was black and possibly a criminal and the other black men were officers it was more of a criminal-police bias.

Well, I'm not sure what I'm getting at, but this case really bothers me.

(Also why would he be found guilty of 1st degree murder. Maybe I'll go back and read the officer's testimony.)

(I might be missing something about the gun and bullet also. ~~It~~ It would be interesting to see that retrial.)

From PL article, it sounds as if the 2 were acquainted.

Also, possibility that police mistook Vaughn's injury-induced grogginess for drunkenness. However, after a card game, one might expect alcohol to be in Vaughn's system, and possibly Waldrop's, too.

The defendant had been fined from his job 1 week before the shooting occurred. He claimed that Cook was hassling him, pulled a gun on him and threatened him. He claimed he shot the officer in self defense. There was evidence that he had been brutally treated, but the officers said this happened when they attempted to arrest him after the shooting. see back Philly¹⁷ Public Ledger's story says that the Philly police had been warned by the Atlanta police that Salford was a "Two Gun Bad Man". It is unclear, however, why officer Cook placed him under arrest. ~~He~~ Cook "sighted the Negro" shortly after midnight and placed him under arrest. Why? Did Cook recognize this black~~man~~ man at midnight as the man wanted for crimes in the south? There's no evidence that Salford actually did anything wrong before his arrest. Anyway, while Cook was calling to summon a police wagon, ~~Salford~~ Salford took Cook's gun + shot him in the head. Salford fled and went to the train yards. He shot another policeman, but "The other policeman then fired at the Negro and he threw up his arms in surrender." Given this, we have either an overenthusiastic writer or a liar in the police department concerning the evidence of Salford's brutal treatment, which the police, according to the 1st set of remarks, say happened during the 2nd arrest of Salford.

* Also, paper says Salford was from Georgia, and had been in Philly for only 2 months. Given Atlanta police dept.'s warning, it seems likely he spent some time in the area. Possibly from Alabama as well.

Philly¹⁸ → witnesses say Salford was armed. (But why wasn't he searched immediately? why did he need to grab the officer's gun?)

- paper now says Salford was "tackled" before he was subdued
- 12 men showed up at hearing and "tried" to take Salford away from his hearing, but were restrained.
- in his confession, Salford was alleged to have said that Cook was "questioning" him about his identity, declaring that he looked like a man wanted for stealing a motorcar. → Police doubt he stole auto.
- it also seems that Salford was armed, and shot Cook 1st with his own weapon, then stole the officer's gun.

Remarks:

Police stopped Saffour late at night - a suspicious character - asked him if he had a gun - put him into the police car - grabbed at the policeman's gun and shot him with it after a struggle - they chased him a long way - cornered him - he fired shots at them also - wounding them.

* The accused was recently from Alabama

* The victim claimed he had been walking peacefully down the road when the policeman grabbed him and harassed him for no reason - when asked if he had a gun said yes - the policeman made a threatening gesture - thought he would shoot
