Remarks:

The defendant and victim were both living together but married to different people. The defendant became jealous when his lover was seeing another man. He said in a letter that because of that he would have to kill himself as well as her. He attempted to take his life, after killing her, but was unsuccessful.

Remarks:

The victim and four others (under no. 390 - indictments for others 391, 392, 393 - although there is another victim, there is no ind. no.) were in a boat on the Delaware River. The allegation is that, in a quarrel, O'Connor upset the boat and the victims drowned. It appears that he upset the boat accidentally.

(Comm. us no. 266) because apparently, they were living in extreme poverty and she needed the insurance money
she would receive from their deaths.
