It was charged that during a demonstration by a group of blacks, that Raymond grabbed Siddles, who was coming towards him, and threw him down and wounded him. The two other defendants were accused of joining in on the attack.

When they were tried for the second time, the defendants were found innocent due to the fact that they had beaten a man but no evidence could be found to support the theory that the beaten man was Siddles.

Some time prior to the death of the victim, the victim's husband hired a woman to take care of the house. Apparently the husband and this woman were quite fond of each other and things were very intimate between them. The girl was forced to leave but the husband still saw her. The husband's wife then became very ill. A doctor prescribed medicines which the husband administered. It was charged that the husband poisoned her medicine.

Remarks:

The deceased returned aboard the ship after a leave of absence. He ordered the defendant, the cook, to get him dinner. The cook told him that dinner was over and that all the food was cold. The victim got very angry and began to yell obscenities at the cook. The cook tried to avoid him but the victim was still angry and continued yelling. Exasperated, the cook hit him over the head with a piece of wood which killed him.
